PRE-APPEAL BRIEF REQUEST FOR REVIEW

Dear Sir:

In accordance with the Official Gazette Notice of July 12, 2005, Appellants respectfully submit this Pre-Appeal Brief Request for Review. This Request is being filed concurrently with a Notice of Appeal.

In the Office Action, the Examiner rejected claims 18-20 under 35 U.S.C. § 112, Second Paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which Appellants regard as the invention. Claims 18-20 were also rejected under 35 U.S.C. §101 as being directed to non-statutory subject matter. Although the Appellants do not concede the correctness of the rejections of claims 18-20 under Sections 101 and 112, the Appellants are not requesting review of those rejections at this time. Accordingly, the rejections under Sections 101 and 112 are not discussed further herein.

Claims 1-20 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102 as being anticipated by the Han reference. As set forth below, this rejection is clearly improper and should be withdrawn.

Claim Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. § 102

The rejection of independent claims 1, 8, 15 and 18 under Section 102 as being anticipated by the Han reference is improper because Han does not show each and every element recited in the claims. Independent claims 1, 8, and 15 recite a navigation manager or code adapted to “save a user’s intended destination and subsequently recall that information to redirect the user back to the intended destination.” (Emphasis added). In addition, independent claim 18 recites a tangible machine readable medium comprising “code that is adapted to save a user’s intended destination and subsequently recall that information to redirect the user back to the intended destination upon completion of the prerequisite.” (Emphasis added).

In contrast, the Han reference clearly fails to disclose the recited subject matter of independent claims 1, 8, 15 and 18. First, Appellants note that Han discloses a system for creating personalized partial views of the same Web page, based on a user’s access privileges. See, Han, page 221. In the rejection, the Examiner particularly pointed to Han’s Fig. 1 as illustrating a “system for creating web applications.” However, as can be clearly seen from Han’s disclosure (e.g., Han, page 222), Fig. 1 discloses a system for creating different views on multiple output devices. This is completely different from the system for creating web applications recited in the claims above. As will be appreciated by one skilled in the art, independent claims 1, 8, 15, and 18 recite an architecture in which a user’s intended destination is saved so that the user may be redirected to that location after completion of other activities. This is not disclosed by Han. Instead, Han discloses a single application for creating various views of the same document.

Moreover, Han discloses a proxy that pulls a partial view based on specific completion of a prerequisite by a user (i.e. username and password). See, Han, page 226. In other words, Han discloses only one intended destination by the user, namely, the partial view corresponding to a specific prerequisite completion. Since the user’s intended destination is the partial view corresponding to the login (prerequisite) that was entered, there is no need to save the user's intended destination for redirection to another, previous path. Thus, Han fails to disclose a navigation manager that saves a user's intended destination and is capable of redirecting the user back to the intended destination.

For at least these reasons, Appellants respectfully submit that independent claims 1, 8, 15, and 18 (and the claims dependent thereon) are not anticipated by the Han reference. Accordingly, the Appellants respectfully request the Panel to withdraw the rejection of claims 1-20 under Section 102 based on the Han reference.

Respectfully submitted,

Barry Blount
